ARTICLE 3-21

"A player who transfers as a Young Player pursuant to articles 3-81 or 3-82 shall not be eligible to represent the National Member Federation of the destination country in FIBA National Team Competitions until reaching the age of twenty-three (23), even if the player obtains a passport from the destination country. This restriction does not apply if the player already held a passport from the National Member Federation of the destination country prior to transferring. This article also applies mutatis mutandis to: (a) any subsequent transfer as a Young Player, or (b) any first registration case according to article 3-79."

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

By signing below, we confirm that we have read and understood Article 3-21. We understand that, because the Player transfers or is first registered as a Young Player, the Player may not represent the national team of the destination country in FIBA National Team Competitions until the Player reaches the age of twenty-three (23), even if the Player obtains that country's passport after the transfer. We also understand that this document only confirms our understanding of the restriction: it is not a declaration choosing, or committing the Player to represent, any national team.
